Title: AGENT FOR ACTING UPON THE ORGANISM

Abstract: The present invention relates to an agent for acting upon the organism and to biologically active substances. This invention more precisely relates to a potentialised preparation which is obtained by repeatedly cultivating and shaking a concrete starting product having toxic properties and being poisonous to the organism (narcotics, alcohol, nicotine, industrial poisons, military poisonous substances). In order to cure alcoholism, this method uses ethanol as a starting substance during the potentialisation, while it uses an opium alkaloid, morphine or morphine hydrochloride for curing drug problems. The potentialised agent of the present invention may be used in any medical homeopathic form and preferably together with the starting product.
